Cover Story:

John McCulloch and Pringle Cottage

The Warwick Historical Society has maintained the historic early home of Pringle Cottage at 81 Dragon St, Map 16 E6, along with six other buildings.

Within the cottage from 1898 till 1905 Mrs Frances S Pringle and her daughter Miss FHM Pringle ran a private school, Milton College, from the upstairs rooms. Thus the many students attending would eventually respond to the concept of this being the Pringle's Home, or the Pringles School. Then later this became popularly known as

Co-Operation In Development

Fred's Bangladesh Schools

Continuing Fred Hyde's Legacy

One of the last surviving WWII's Kokoda veterans campaign, Fred Hyde AM of Warwick, passed away last year, less than a year after his retirement from an extraordinary career spent in public service. Fred's work in Bangladesh, where he established Co-Operation in Development, has seen the building of 45 schools. and 9 kindergartens - and the education of tens of thousands of primary-school aged children born into desperate poverty.

Fred's legacy is very much alive, with a strong committee consisting of both Warwick district residents and members Melbourne, Canberra, Darwin and Brisbane, have taken up the reins. Local committee member Paddy O'Leary spent two months in Bangladesh recently, supervising the refurbishment of four schools and the building of four new kindergartens, while committee chair. Dr Olav Muurlink (the former editor Free Times and now academic at Central Queensland University) is a regular visitor to Bangladesh now.

Executive: Fred Hyde (Dec.), Olav Muurlink, Tony Kent, Len Willett, Geraldine O'Neill, Kathy Mullis. Committee members: Rod Mulliss, Pat O'Leary, Shirley Owens, Borhan Shafi, Sue Walpole, Iqbal Faruque, John Waterhouse, Anne Blunt, Cath Reaumont.

"Losing Fred has been a big blow, but the committee has done a wonderful job of stepping up. We've had great support from the community in the border region - we had people handing us cash anonymously at Fred's funeral for example - and people will always remember what Fred did for Warwick, and what he was achieving over in Bangladesh." says Olav.

The organisation is funded by donations, many of them from school students across the east coast of Australia, and bequests. The committee kick in by doing all their work voluntarily, unlike many international aid organisations.

& BODY BALANCING Does your horse suffer from problems like the below

- · Dropping foods:
- or problems relating to them? · Cantering circles better one way;
 - Head shv/sore or head tossing while riding:
- Stepping short in gates;
- · Unhappy or bad attitude;
- Hard to gain weight or have a good healthy coat.

These are just a few things that can be helped when a horses 'Teeth & Body' are balanced together. 109 Hentschels Rd Mt Marshall (Map B H7)

Migration Agents

Anthonu L. Clarke

Tony has been helping people come to Australia for so long that he has met nearly every Minister for Immigration, and even helped with government policy.

He says that along with 'filling the forms' he often writes 200 - 300 pages of detailed information.

This is why, over the last 35 years, he has been successful in helping over 3,000 families move to Australia, as well as helping with thousands of other matters related to migration.

Give Tony a ring. The first phone consulation is free. He visits this area.

Keeping Up and Ahead

'just so complete'®

new formats of advertising Most people realise that there have been changes in advertising formats in the last few years.

The media range of papers, radio, television has been swelled with the arrival of online google, facebook. Over a few short years, new formats on new digital platforms have widened from computer to hand-held mobile phones.

We anticipated this many years ago with our pocket-sized print format. For this reason we have carried forward our developments to ensure new Pocket Books formats would be available on emerging online platforms.

Advertisers using Pocket Books online platform can avail themselves Ωf possibility of extensive content detail of their goods they sell (e.g. menus for take away shops and restaurants) or services offer (web they design, accounting etc..). In their profile they may include videos of, e.g., how their machinery works, or include a of images such as range photos of their workshop. offices, or samples of works completed, quality of workmanship etc.

These new online formats are teamed with print advertising, something most online directories do not offer. That is, most online directories do not produce anything in print and yet, the majority of people love reading printed material just as much as on the computer nowadays. (That said, Google does use direct mail marketing of their own adwords.)

Providing various advertising options on different platforms enhances user experience and gives a better value to advertisers for their dollar spent.

advertising circle

In the past the advertising circle encompassed mainly television, radio, newspapers and directories. This circle has now been expanded to include internet and its related online platforms.

Irrespective of the platform, Pocket Book® draws in the search for local goods and services in this enlarged media circle when a user is ready to So purchase. when clients prospective have researched a product service, they are often more likely, even months later, to seek a local supplier through Pocket Book® at www.pocketbooks.com.au.

in-house systems keep-up enables the users to find the most relevant information online in an efficient user-friendly without excessive flashing. blinking or forced clicks. If a user is, for example, searching on our website for a Warwick plumber, we will display Keeping Up... Continues opp. page> plumbers in Warwick first and plumbers within surrounding postcode. followed by the whole area. We designed the searches provide to the informative solutions therefore utilising the Pocket Books formats to display as much information as possible will benefit the businesses same as the users.

Pocket Books have been perfecting the SEO (Search Optimisation) implementation for google organic searches on on-going basis. Despite that our coverage with printed directories is currently limited to Queensland and Victoria local areas. Google's algorithm often places us on the first page of its result together with national firms. This continuing SEO work benefits the users and the advertisers of the Pocket Books' platforms.

In the flood of information sources and advertising possibilities trust has become an important aspect for users their and business in decision-making process. Pocket Books have built trust with the users and business over the last 27 years to the degree that our directories have become the main source of business information for local residents and businesses. This trust continues to carry over to online usage.

To enhance the trust we have developed our website to be a Secure website with an SSL (Secure Soclet Layer) lock. Pocket Books is aware of importance of cyber security and your information to be safe. In addition, an SSL is looked favourably by Google algorithm for organic searches.

While our web does reach potential clients everywhere and anywhere, our printed directories are designed to reach concentrated outer suburban and country regions. total. with printed directories. reach we population base of about 600.000: more 'reach' than most individual capital newspapers.

people aspect

Digital development is a tool of enormous value to make the processes of business operation more efficient and to improve users' convenience. But Pocket Books is aware that today, more than ever, human interaction is invaluable.

If you call Pocket Books, there are no automats keeping you in a queue, nor even autocrats. You will speak with a real person ... a real person actually in Australia. We listen, we write, we do the graphics, we do it all here.

Pocket Books, ph: 5438 1881 PO Box 288 Beerwah Q 4519 4/21 Peachester Rd Beerwah E: sd@pocketbooks.com.au www.pocketbooks.com.au

Seeking

The basic human desires are to seek food, shelter, security and only later to seek learning, wisdom, religion and perhaps enlightenment.

An original theorist, Maslow, developed this into a hierarchy of wants, on which he based his advertising hypotheses.

In past centuries after meeting the basic needs, many would set off on a pilgrimage experience to the Holy Lands.

These days, three months on a salling ship has been replaced with a day in a plane. So the number of major 'experiences' one can complete in a lifetime is significantly increased.

Some still go to the Holy Land of Christ, or of other religions; but many use substitute holy lands like the Notre Dame in Paris or the Maharishi tomb on the Ganges or the original twelve churches of the apostle St Thomas in India; while some seek the dens of iniquity at Las Vegas.

People also have time, and a little spare income, for minor experiences. Gym exercise, a restaurant dinner, or a run in a local park, can be contemplative experiences as well as good fun.

New furniture and clothes, odd jobs and repairs around the home, studies and education all add to the local experiences.

This Pocket Book has been designed to bring virtually every local experience within the easy 'seeking' ability of local residents and local firms.

Reading through the index of classifications on pages 2 to 5 shows just how many services and products are here. Over three thousand local firms, clubs and government agencies are right here in this book offering you their unique experiences.

Pocket Book is often read right through generating direct new enquiries to advertising firms those firms which have a few lines to explain to you the services and products they offer.

Pocket Book is also used as a 'completion of the advertising circle' (A phrase used in the marketing textbooks). Thus, when you have found through other sources "an item" experience", you read the detail of an appropriate classification in Pocket Book to seek a local supplier. If the item you saw about months ago is shown as available right here on the Pocket Book page, the firm showing it will obtain your business, even if this seems to be a different firm to the one you read about originally.

While displays and logos promote strength and ability, informative advertisements in Pocket Book do not always need to be big. But .. they do need to inform.

One of my favourite small advts was in our Bacchus Marsh Vic Pocket Book until Richard retired.

ANYTYPE PLASTER

Richard beautifully completes the whole plaster work in new homes and restorations.

Richard does complete wall and ceilings, along with incidental carpentry, to keep the job flowing.

He has specialist ceiling machines to allow the work of three men to be done by one man.

And ...

he is the "Michaelangelo" of ornate cornices.

Insurance, domestic, commercial.

Phone & email. address etc

I wrote his Plasterers' advt to allow a lot of important information in an economical space, and to conjure up 'visions' of his activity.

'Seeking' Continues opp. page>

This sounds simple to read, but then look at the emotive and complete feelings and knowledge exposed by each word:

Beautifully: the result is a thing of beauty.

Completes: the job will be finished

Whole plaster work: all will be

New homes: he works with builders

Restorations: he works with home handymen, and us mere mortals

Walls and ceilings: no need for two separate licensed tradesmen Incidental: In the context of this advt this is "a tradesman's term" meaning just getting the things done that might impede the work.

Carpentry: he knows how to hammer a nail as well as stick the plaster

To keep the job flowing: business people see this as efficiency ensuring each person on the job is properly active.

Specialist ceiling machines ... : he ensures the job will be efficient by using modern equipment; this appeals directly to the chequebook of the business person in larger homes.

Michaelangelo ... : We could use this because Richard was from Italy. But the main reason was because many school children, especially in private schools, are taught how the original Michaelangelo spent two years lying on his back in high risky hammocks painting the ceilings and cornices of the Sistine Chapel in Rome. So this meant artistry and beauty on the connection between sky and earth, ... the cornice.

The wording of this advert got Richard into prestige where he had always wanted to be.

Local firms could easily place this amount of information into a Pocket Book advert, or Pocket book Web Profile, for the whole year. And, not for thousands of dollars like some other media.

Then, of course the 'Seekers' Pocket Book would through discover many more interesting of information. about services. products and experiences.
